ABOUT ROB SOGOMONIAN

Rob is a full-time voice actor and talented multi-hyphenate with a professional home studio. He produces broadcast quality recordings and has over 20 years of production experience with video and voice over. He excels at character work, corporate narration, technical narration, and medical narration. If you have an eLearning or explainer video his naturally dynamic and engaging voice can be more articulate, professional, and consistent than if you have character work for animation or video games where it can swing over to expressive, silly, and fun. It all depends on your project requirements.

Rob records with either a Neumann TLM 103 or an Audio Technica AT875R through a Universal Audio Apollo Twin X for crystal clear audio.

Holding himself to a high professional standard, Rob is very detail oriented and likes to ask clarifying questions to ensure he is on the same page prior to recording in an effort to deliver the best product on the first try. He is an excellent communicator, exercises excellent time management skills, and is persistent when it comes to providing exactly what is asked of him - and he often goes above and beyond.

He truly believes the saying: "if you put your mind to it, you can accomplish anything."

Born and raised in the San Francisco Bay Area, Rob has a neutral American accent by default; however, he does enjoy bringing out his regional US accents as well as several international accents when they lend themselves to the characters he plays.
